

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method and apparatus preventing a disc from being scratched by an objective lens. A focus pull-in operation is performed. If a level of a pull-in signal remains lower than a predetermined critical level for a predetermined critical period of time or more, the objective lens is controlled so as to move away from the disc.